TYPICITY / PRECISION

Does the wine express what it should?

Typicity (or precision) is how well the wine reflects its grape variety, region / terroir, and intended style.

WHAT IT IS

How well the wine represents:

-  Its grape variety
-  Its region / terroir
-  Its intended style

In simple terms:

“ Does this taste like it should? ”

HOW TO IDENTIFY IT

Do the aromas match what you expect from this grape?
Does it show the typical character of the variety?

Does it feel true to its origin or style?
Does it reflect the region, climate, or style it comes from?

Is the expression clear and focused, or vague and confusing?
Can you clearly understand what this wine wants to be?

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

HIGH TYPICITY / PRECISION

- ✓ Clear identity
- ✓ Recognizable style
- ✓ Focused, well-defined flavors
- ✓ Feels authentic and true to its origin

EXAMPLE
Sauvignon Blanc that clearly shows citrus, green, and freshness.

LOW TYPICITY / PRECISION

- ✗ Unclear identity
- ✗ Confusing or muted expression
- ✗ Doesn't match expectations
- ✗ Feels generic or "lost"

EXAMPLE
A wine where you can't tell the grape or style.

KEY DISTINCTION

Balance = how well things fit together

Typicity = how true it is to its identity

QUICK TIP

Can you recognize what this wine is trying to be?
